Saturn will be Morning Star to March 23, then Evening Star to October 2, then Morning Star the rest of the year.

THE SOLAR SYSTEM.

The Sun, the centre of the Solar System, has a diameter of 885,680 miles, and its bulk is 1,400,000 times greater than that of the Earth, and 700 times greater than that of all the bodies revolving around it.

The Planets.

Neptune,	31,000	60	2,800,000,000	$164\frac{1}{2}$ yrs.	0	00	21.5

The Moon's diameter is 2,160 miles, and her volume $\frac{1}{49}$ of that of the Earth. She revolves in her orbit once in $29\frac{1}{2}$ days, at a distance of 240,000 miles from the Earth.

The Asteroids number 72, of which 10 were discovered in 1861. Leverrier estimates that their aggregate mass does not exceed one-third of that of the Earth.

Apparent Time, is time reckoned by the revolutions of the Sun from the meridian to the meridian again. These intervals being unequal, of course the apparent solar days are unequal to each other.

Mean Time, is time reckoned by the average length of all the solar days throughout the year. This is the period which constitutes the civil day of 24 hours.

TIDES OF THE PACIFIC COAST.

On the Pacific coast, there is, as a general rule, one large and one small tide during each day; the height of two successive high-waters occurring one A. M., the other P. M. of the same twenty-four hours, and the intervals from the next preceding transit of the moon are very different. The inequalities depend upon the moon's declination; they disappear near the time of the moon's declination, being nothing, and are greatest about the time of its being greatest. The inequalities for low water are not the same as for high, though they disappear and have the greatest value at nearly the same times.

In Puget Sound, the inequalities for the interval of high water and for the height of low water follow this rule, but those for the interval of low water and height of high water disappear about one day before the moon's declination is greatest, and are greatest about four or five days before the greatest declination.

When the moon's declination is north, the highest of the two tides of the twenty-four hours occurs at San Francisco about eleven and one-half hours after the moon's southing (transit), and when the declination is south, the lowest of the two high tides occurs about that interval. The lowest of the two low waters of the day is the one which follows next the highest high water.

To obtain the times of high or low water for Monterey, South Farallone, Mare Island, Benicia, Ravenswood, and Bodega, find the time for San Francisco, then subtract 1 h. 44 m. for Monterey, 1 h. 29 m. for the South Farallone, and 49 m. for Bodega; and add 34 m. for Mare Island, 1 h. 4 m. for Benicia, and 30 m. for Ravenswood.

For Humboldt Bay, Port Orford and Neeah Bay, find the time for Astoria, then subtract 40 m. for Humboldt Bay, 1 h. 16 m. for Port Orford, and 9 m. for Neeah Bay.

For Steilacoom and Semiahmoo Bay, find the time for Port Townsend, and add to it 57 m. for Steilacoom, and 1 hour for Semiahmoo. The approximation will only be a rough one for Steilacoom.

Remarks.—The climatic feature of predominant interest in its practical bearing, lies in our periodical rains, which we have portrayed in the above rain-table, arranged according to the seasons. The monthly amounts prior to January, 1853, have been, for the most part, estimated and computed according to the most reliable information that can now be obtained, and are not wholly the result of our own positive admeasurements. It will be seen that the mean annual fall for thirteen years is above twenty inches, which would be ample for agricultural purposes, if it were uniformly distributed through the rainy months of every season; but, as appears, there is a great fluctuation not only in the monthly amounts, but also in the amounts of different seasons—so great as to lead to the conclusion that the deficiency must be made up, whenever it occurs, by irrigation. The reason why the floods of the past season were greater than those of the season 1852–'53, when more rain actually fell, is found in the great amount of warm rains at certain periods in December and January succeeding heavy snow storms, bringing down avalanches of melted snow and ice from the mountain sources of our rivers. In this way we may have a comparatively dry winter, and yet suffer from the most disastrous floods. As far as can be ascertained, the quantity of rain during the season, at Sacramento, measures from one-third to two-thirds less than that which falls on the western slope of our mountains and the higher parts of the valley.

NOTABILIA OF THE FLOODS OF 1861–'62.

By Thomas Rowlandson, F. G. S. L.

METEOROLOGY OF THE UNITED STATES AND TERRITORIES ON THE PACIFIC.

The regions bordering on the equator are the hottest on the earth, owing to the sun being nearest to their zenith; from which to the poles, the temperature diminishes, other things being equal, proportionally as these points are approached. Owing to this circumstance, an upper current is found constantly flowing from the equator to the two poles, and a lower one from the poles to the equator; the latter becoming heated, ascends and returns toward the extremities of the terrestrial axes.

As the diameters of the parallel circles diminish as they recede from the equator, and as all parts situated in the same meridian make a complete revolution round the axis of the earth in twenty-four hours, it follows that they move with a velocity much greater as the points are nearer to the equatorial line. In the northern hemisphere, as the upper and heated atmosphere proceeds toward the north, it gets more and more in advance of the earth's rotatory motion; the combination of this motion from the west toward the east, combined with the original direction from south to north, occasions a southwest wind.

Within the torrid zone, a considerable portion of the heat transmitted by the rays of the sun is absorbed by the waters of the ocean, occasioning an immense evaporation, and consequently lowering the temperature of that portion of the earth. The rarefied air of the torrid zone, charged with moisture, becomes gradually cooled on passing into a higher latitude, and consequently condensed, thus giving rise to clouds and eventually to rain; contemporaneously with this condensation, whether exhibited in the form of cloud, mist, or rain, heat is evolved; a more equable temperature is thus given to the various parts of the earth. Such are the chief laws which regulate climate; but they more correctly apply to what may be termed oceanic climate. Considerable variations occur when high mountain ranges or extended plains, singly or conjointly, contribute to change the normal conditions. In California both these circumstances are found, as well as others, which have an important bearing on its climate; one of the principal of which is, the immense current of moisture and saturated air which flows from the tropics over the Gulf of California and the low-lying coast of Sonora, &c., into the great plain between the Sierra Nevada and the Rocky Mountains. In this way the greater part of the moisture-laden winds from the equator is deflected from California, as our valleys becoming heated usually give rise to a direct west wind, which, although charged with moisture, as evidenced by the great fog banks daily seen on the coast range, is speedily dissipated on entering into the warmer atmosphere found within the valleys which lie between the coast range and the Sierra Nevada. The reverse of this takes place when a southerly wind blows, especially those ranging from southeast to southwest; in such cases a warm, saturated atmosphere invades a comparatively cold one, then rain is precipitated; and this is particularly seen in the torrent-like character of the rain storms which are witnessed on the Sierra Nevada, from Mariposa to the Tejon Pass. Unfortunately, no record has ever been kept of the rain-fall in this region; in some parts it must have been enormous, probably more than 200 inches perpendicular for the entire wet season of six months. A correspondent of one of the San Francisco papers, writing from Visalia, and alluding to lumber, states as follows:

"The latter article is rather scarce here just now, owing to the destruction of all the saw mills by the floods, which seem to have been of a terrific nature on the foot-hills composing the lumber region. From Mr. Thomas, who with his brother lost two mills, I learn that the water in many of the ravines rose to a perpendicular height of seventy feet, and that hundreds of immense pines, being uprooted, were so ground up that they reached the plains as fine as saw-dust. A huge boiler from one of their mills was carried many miles, and most of the massive iron works have never since been seen."

Whilst it seldom rains in Lower California, in Oregon and Washington Territory tremendous rains occur, and the ordinary rainy season commences sooner and terminates later, both in the sister State and the northern Territory; in fact, the northern portion of California, so far as rain is concerned, possesses a not dissimilar climate to that of Oregon. When the northeast winds bring rain, it is probable that the northeast parts of California are deluged with heavier rains than the sister State or Washington Territory. No return nor any estimate has been made of the rain-fall last year in Washington Territory, but general rumor has described the fall as having been very heavy. Perhaps, on the average, a greater fall took place there, than in either Oregon or California; though probably in no place so low or high as that of some localities in the latter State, where, doubtless, the extremes have occurred, the lowest probably being on the plains of the Sacramento and San Joaquin, and the highest at about 5,000 feet elevation above the level of the sea, on the Sierra Nevada, lying westwardly from the line of Mariposa to the Tejon Pass.

The great plain and morass watered by the Sacramento and San Joaquin, is the recipient of all the waters which fall upon an area whose extent is equal very nearly to that of England proper, and in geographical position appears to be placed, when taken in connection with the southern counties, as intermediate between an extremely dry (Lower California) and an extremely wet country, the latter being composed of the northern counties of California and the United States Territories to the north. It may easily be conceived that, from this peculiar position, the amount of aridity or humidity between any given years may be exceedingly discrepant. Thus a tradition exists among the Indians, that during one year not a drop of rain fell in central California, whilst the converse of this is also reported, namely, that heavier rains and floods than have been witnessed during 1861–'62, have been known. The truth of the latter is greatly corroborated by the fact, that marks exist on trees, growing in the San Joaquin valley, showing that a former flood had been fully six feet higher. Mr. Robert B. Randal, of Crescent City, has kindly informed me "that the first flood (1861–'62) was some forty feet higher than the usual stages of water at Bradford's Ford on Smith River. From the bank at that place, the ground has a gradual rise in a northerly direction, and was overflowed a mile or more; from this high-water mark, and a quarter of a mile in the same direction, are several drift logs, evidently deposited by a former and still higher flood. * * * The Indians have it that this former flood occurred about forty years since;"—possibly contemporaneous with that, the evidences of which are still to be witnessed in the San Joaquin valley. The latter fact has been attempted to be explained away as imperfect evidence, and attributable to the growth of the trees; this, however, is a fallacy, because trees grow by cellular elongation, and the addition of new cells.

According to the rain-gauge kept by Dr. Ayres, near Stockton and Clay Streets, San Francisco, for the season 1861–'62, the fall amounted to 40.674 inches; the one kept by Mr. Tennent indicated 49.27 inches, and the one observed by Dr. Logan, at Sacramento, showed 35.549 inches for the same period; while at Fort Gaston, Hoopa Valley, Klamath County, according to the published statement of Dr. C. A. Kirkpatrick, the fall from Sept., 1861, to June 18th, 1862, amounted to 129.16 inches. Dr. Logan has further advised me, that according to the observations of W. A. Bigoli, of Red Dog, Nevada, there fell for twenty-four hours ending 9 A. M., Jan. 10th, 5.82 inches; for twenty-four hours ending at the same period of the day on Jan. 11th, 5.50 inches were collected in the rain-gauge; from which, and the amount of snow which was observed on the Big Tree Road, it is a fair inference that at least an average of four inches of rain fell within the great central watershed of California. For, according to the published statement of

Mr. Richy, from observations made four miles west of the Sierra Nevada, on the Big Tree Road:

Jan. 5.	Amount of snow in inches			14
" 6.	"	"	"	14
" 7.	"	"	"	 2
" 8.	"	"	"	 4

The total fall of snow from Nov. 11, 1861, to March 23, 1862, being 50 feet 2 inches.

Dr. Logan remarks that, on the occasion of the first inundation at Sacramento, on Dec. 7th, 1861, "It commenced raining at 12 M., and ended at 9 A. M. on the 9th; amount in inches, 2.570; the flood commenced at 10 A. M. of the 9th Dec., and at 10 P. M. had reached 2 feet 6 inches in my office; by daylight it had all subsided. At the second inundation, on Jan. 5th, 1862, rain commenced at 10 A. M. and ended at 1½ A. M. on the 6th; during that interval there fell 2.690 inches. On Jan. 8th, rain commenced at 11 A. M. and ended at 7 A. M. on the 10th; between which periods there fell 2.840 inches. On January 10th the flood reached my floor at 2 P. M., and at 8 P. M. came to a stand, at 3 feet 11 inches above my floor. The Sacramento River rose during this night to 24 feet above low-water mark. On the 14th, the water had receded from my floor."

There are two circumstances which will almost invariably be found the accompaniments of extremely heavy floods, namely, that of occurring early in the season, previous to the early fallen snow on the mountains having become hardened and compact—in the former state being more easily percolated, and consequently dissolved by warm rains; and secondly, the direction of the winds being continuous for some time from the southeast to southwest, by which means the tidal waters of the Bay of San Francisco become elevated beyond their normal condition, and to that extent impede the outflow. At the first flood, the former cause was the chief one; at the second one, each cause had its influence. A slight reflection, however, will convince any one acquainted with these subjects, that all these phenomena will in future, as we have witnessed in the past, be likely to be coincident with great floods that may occur hereafter; in fact, may rather be viewed as their cause, instead of an accidental accompaniment, and should, consequently, in any suggested palliations or remedies, be taken into calculation as a constant element. From tradition, it would appear that we may anticipate a flood once in about eight years, or twelve in a century; including in the latter number, about three more than usual heavy ones, an estimate which is in a great measure justified by the geographical position of California.

Assuming the entire water-shed drained through the Straits of Carquinez as occupying an area equal to 50,000,000 square miles, and that the rain-fall averaged over the entire area a depth equal to four inches in twenty-four hours—and for some days in January last it certainly must have exceeded that amount—it would be equal to 5,377,785 cubic feet per second, or four times the highest gauge ever made of the Mississippi at its highest floods. The whole of this immense volume has no outlet, excepting a passage not greater than 300,000 feet sectional area, with the further disadvantage that this outlet is subjected to tidal influence. Under such circumstances, that the low-lying country to the east of Carquinez should become inundated, and that for a long period, is not surprising.

The inundation thus caused, extended over probably more than 6,000,000 acres; the remedy for which evil can only be sought in mountain impoundage, for which purpose the physical character of the district surrounding the great central valley affords singularly great facilities, and in positions remarkably favorable for the utilization of the proposed imprisoned waters for mining, manufacturing, and irrigating purposes, which, if placed under proper regulations, and combined with a judicious improvement of the lower Sacramento and San Joaquin, these rivers could, at no great expense, be made susceptible of floating an ocean going steamer to Sacramento and Stockton. The arrangements made for leveeing the swamp lands under the existing law, may be sufficiently effective during small floods; but should the same policy be pursued over any considerable area, it will be found to aggravate the evil, and the first large rain-fall will demonstrate its insufficiency. It will be for the Legislature to determine, whether the balance of the swamp land fund should be frittered away in fruitless and petty expedients, or form the nucleus of a fund, to be expended in permanently shielding the low lands from the disastrous consequences of future floods, and at the same time greatly enlarging the general productive powers of the State.

Among other curious phenomena connected with the late floods, was the fact of considerable breadths of tulé floating in the bay, on the surface of which there was generally found a number of land snakes, some of which floated into the Pacific, others got landed under the wharves, and for a long time after the floods had in a great measure subsided, numerous snakes were to be found about the wharves of San Francisco. Most singular of all, however, was the fact that the bay fishermen frequently caught fresh-water fish in the bay; for from two to three months, the surface portion of the entire waters of the Bay of San Francisco consisted of fresh water, to the depth of from eighteen to twenty-four inches. Dr. W. O. Ayres gave to the California Academy of Science the following list of fish so found:—Archoplitis interruptus, Catostomus occidentalis, Catostomus labiatus, Orthodon microlepidotus, Algausea formosa, Laomia compressa, Ptychocheilus grandis, Mylopharodon robustus.

The oysters placed on oyster-beds fattened and died; mussels became fresh and flavorless, but, as far as my observation went, did not perish. At the Golden Gate, for nearly a fortnight, the stream on the surface was continuously flowing toward the Pacific, composed entirely of fresh water, the tide not affecting the surface flow, and the water was brackish at the Farallone Islands.

UNITED STATES.

The United States of America contains an estimated area of 3,250,000 square miles. Its surface embraces about one-third of North America, and about one-twentieth of the land of the whole earth. Its greatest length from east to west is about 3,000 miles, and its greatest breadth from north to south, 1,700 miles. It has a frontier line of about 10,000 miles, of which 3,500 miles is along the Atlantic coast and Gulf of Mexico, and 1,620 miles on the Pacific Ocean and Straits of Juan de Fuca.

Pacific Railroad.—An Act of Congress, approved July 1, 1862, provided for the construction of a railroad from the Missouri River to the Sacramento Valley. The name of the body corporate is the Pacific Union Railroad Company, and consists of more than 150 commissioners. The amount of capital stock is fixed at $100,000,000, in 100,000 shares of $1,000 each. At the convention held at Chicago, Sept. 2, 1862, the Board of Commissioners elected the Hon. William B. Ogden, of Illinois, President of the Company; Henry V. Poor, of the Railroad Journal, Secretary, and Thomas W. Olcott, of Albany, Treasurer. It was ordered that books of subscription to the stock should be opened on the first Wednesday in November, in the principal Eastern cities, and in San Francisco, Portland, Carson City, and Great Salt Lake City.

Mining Excitements.—The year 1862 was prolific in gold-mining excitements. In British Columbia, a small extent of country at the head waters of the Fraser had been prospected during the season of 1861, with successful results in individual instances. The same was true in regard to a limited section of country drained by the eastern branches of Snake River, in Washington Territory, some 500 miles from the ocean. The local newspaper press, the steamship companies, and the excitable tendencies of our people, combined to create a great "rush" to both localities in 1862. Large numbers of Canadians, direct from the east, joined our own emigration to the Cariboo mines of British Columbia; and it is estimated that not less than 30,000 adventurers visited the Nez Perces and Salmon River mines in Washington. In another direction the Colorado gold mines, near the Colorado River, in the western part of Arizona, have attracted considerable attention, and are believed to be both rich and extensive. While the northern mines can be worked but half the year on account of deep snows and low temperature, the Colorado mines are subject to the opposite extremes of excessive heat and prolonged drought.

That these three gold fields, particularly that of the Columbia Basin, will prove an important contribution to the wealth and resources of the Pacific States, cannot be doubted. During the nine months preceding Oct. 15, 1862, there had been shipped from British Columbia about $1,200,000, and from the Washington and Oregon mines $1,800,000; all exclusive of what was shipped through private channels. The yield of the Washoe Silver Region during the same period was about $4,000,000.

The P. M. S. S. Co.'s steamer Golden Gate, plying between San Francisco and Panama, left the former port on the 21st of July, 1862, with 388 passengers and crew, and was burned to the water's edge on Sunday, July 27th, fifteen miles northwest of Manzanillo, and one hundred and seventy-six lives were lost. Cause: criminal negligence of the company to furnish adequate protection against accidents at sea.

In October, 1862, an opposition line to the Atlantic via the Nicaragua Isthmus Transit was established. The Moses Taylor, which made the first trip, sailed from San Francisco on the 21st.

CALIFORNIA.

The Great Floods of 1861–'62 were the most overwhelming and disastrous that have visited this state since its occupation by Americans. The first flood submerged the Sacramento Valley about the 10th of December, the water rising higher than in either of the memorable floods of 1849 and 1852. For six weeks thereafter an unusual amount of rain descended; and during that time the deluge but partially subsided, the streams still carried torrents, and the low lands were overflowed. On the 24th of January the second flood attained its greatest height, and the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys were transformed into a broad inland sea, stretching from the foot-hills of the Sierras to the Coast Range, and somewhat similar in extent and shape to Lake Michigan.

The raging mountain torrents swept away bridges, fences, houses, mills, and the most durable improvements in their reach; not unfrequently ploughing new channels through the country, and depositing the debris of sand and rock upon large sections of cultivated land.

But the flood was not attended with unmixed evil. The streams that had been choked by tailings for years, were suddenly cleared of their obstructions, and extensive river-beds were again opened to the enterprise of the miner. The work of rebuilding bridges and mills, and of repairing other damages, called into profitable employment a large number of persons; and trade and commerce and actual improvement suffered less interruption than might naturally have been expected, after so great a blow to our prosperity: and such are the wonderful energies and resources of our people, that in a few months the ravages of the flood had disappeared, and losses estimated at millions had been retrieved.

Constitutional Amendments.—The amendments to the Constitution proposed by the members of the twelfth session of the Legislature, and adopted by the thirteenth session, were ratified by the people at the last general election. The effects of the amendments upon the three branches of the State Government are noted in the executive, legislative, and judicial departments.

GENERAL REMARKS.

County Officers.—The term of office of the County Judge is four years, and of the other county officers, two years each. In consequence of the Constitutional Amendments, the terms of all the County Judges expire on the first of January, 1864. The County Judge is ex officio Judge of the Court of Sessions and Court of Probate. When the amendments take effect, the Court of Sessions will be abolished. The County Clerk is Clerk of all the Courts in the county; he is also ex officio County Recorder and County Auditor, except in those counties where, by special enactment, such officers exist. The District Attorney, in addition to a salary, receives certain fees provided by law.

Legal Distances are fixed by statute to regulate the mileage of Members of the Legislature, and of county officers whose official duties require them to go to the Capital, Insane Asylum, or State Prison.

1. ALAMEDA COUNTY.

Edward W. Bonney was executed at San Leandro, May 9th, 1862, for the murder of Auguste Hirsch on the 13th of January, 1861. It was the first legal execution in Alameda County.

The ravages of the flood of January, 1862, were very great in Amador and Livermore Valleys. An old Californian, born in this county, states that Alameda creek rose eight feet higher than he had ever before seen it.

The Bay District Agricultural Fair was held at Oakland, on the 2d, 3d, 4th, and 5th of October, 1862.

4. BUTTE COUNTY.

An unsuccessful effort was made to divide the county during the Legislative session of 1862. The object of the division was to detach the agricultural from the mineral portion of the county, by organizing the former into a new county, to be called Chico.

Six men engaged in lumbering, were drowned in the Feather River, June 1st, 1862, about twenty miles north of Oroville.

The Indians in the northern part of the county were very troublesome during the summer. In the latter part of June, their depredations culminated in the capture of three members of a family by the name of Hickok, residing near the Forks of Butte. A party of residents went in pursuit, and found the bodies of the two girls, aged respectively sixteen and thirteen, pierced with many arrows. The boy, who was younger, was never recovered. It was several months before the Indian disturbances were effectually quelled.

An Indian Reservation was established in Smith River Valley by Superintendent Hanson, in February, 1862. The improvements of the Klamath Reservation having been destroyed by the flood, the Indians were removed to this valley because more eligibly located than the Klamath River for the reception of supplies and for military protection.

The storm of December washed immense quantities of timber upon the beach, so that for miles it lay in a belt averaging 200 yards in width, and in places several layers thick. By the same storm, 400 feet of the valuable wharf (1,300 feet long) at Crescent City was swept away.

9. EL DORADO COUNTY.

The fourth annual fair of the El Dorado County Agricultural Society was held at Placerville, commencing September 23d, 1862.

Silver Mountain is the name of a new silver mining district, discovered in the southeastern part of this county, between the forks of Carson River, near the summit of the Sierras. The name has also been applied to the village that has sprung into existence, and already numbers over thirty houses. The great abundance of wood and water in this district gives it a great advantage over the other silver districts on the eastern slope.

11. HUMBOLDT COUNTY.

The northeastern portion of this county has been the theatre of very serious Indian depredations during the past year. So early as the 2d of April, the citizens of Arcata held a meeting "to consider the existing relations with the Indians," at which a series of resolutions were adopted, among which was the following:

Resolved, That our community has been laid waste entirely; all of the dwellings have been burnt to the east of the Hoopa trail, "except one now occupied by the troops," for a distance of near 50 miles east and south; the cattle and other property destroyed to a great extent; our citizens have been murdered by the score; the women and little children have been driven to our village and are nearly destitute. For more than one year have citizens been prevented from going to the country except at great risk of their lives. Improvement of any kind is now out of the question, and we have been mortified by seeing our population steadily take their departure for other parts of the country affording more security.

Although more efficient measures were soon after adopted, the Indians continued to be the terror of the community for several months. Colonel Lippitt, the commander of the Humboldt military district, established new posts, and arranged his meagre forces to the best advantage; but the wily foe, well armed, and in bands of from 40 to 200, lurked in inaccessible or unknown retreats, or if surprised by the vigilance of the soldiers, retired to others equally secret and difficult of access, and thus from their intimate knowledge of the topography of this wild region, they existed almost with impunity in the vicinity of United States troops. It would require more space than we desire to give, to mention even the notable instances of their daring and depredations.

12. KLAMATH COUNTY.

The floods of 1861–'62 did great damage in this county. The rivers, flowing through channels at the bottom of narrow, deep cañons, had no chance to spread, and rose proportionately high; in one place (at the mouth of the Salmon River) the Klamath rose over 100 feet above its ordinary level, sweeping away a wire suspension bridge, 90 feet high. Immense land slides took place, making precipices of the steep mountain slopes, and temporarily damming the rivers, when the accumulated waters suddenly broke forth, carrying every thing before them. Some of the gulches were cleared of mills, flumes, dams, houses, and improvements of every character, even to the little patches of soil that were cultivated. New developments were made, however, through the agency of the flood; the land slides disclosed hitherto hidden treasures, and the torrents sluiced out the yielding mountain sides depositing new beds of auriferous sand on the bars below.

Clinton Woodford, Esq., Inspector of the port of Trinidad, and formerly an attorney at Orleans Bar, was shot by some hand unknown on the 2d of July. The homicide was supposed to have resulted from a previous controversy with Mr. Marx, of Nordheimer and Marx.

14. LOS ANGELES COUNTY.

A water-spout occurred on the 16th of August, in San Francisquito Cañon, about 60 miles north of Los Angeles, which is thus described:

"About 1 P. M. of that day, a heavy rain cloud which had been hovering over the cañon, burst with a noise like thunder, discharging a huge volume of water, instantly filling up the cañon with a roaring stream, carrying every thing along in its resistless course. A party from Kern River, on their way to Los Angeles, were in the cañon, of which party one, Mrs. C. J. Chevalier, was drowned. The water in the cañon when the party entered it, was less than three inches, and when the torrent came, it was over fifteen feet deep. It was past daylight the next morning ere the torrent subsided."

Several causes have quickened Los Angeles into new life. It is the supply depot for the military forces that have been accumulating in the southern part of the state. The goods destined for the rapidly developing silver region of Coro, and for the new gold mines of Colorado River, find their most convenient route through Los Angeles.

Colonel E. J. C. Kewen, member of Assembly from this county, was arrested on a charge of treason, October 7th, 1862, and conveyed, under military escort, to Fort Alcatraz.

15. MARIN COUNTY.

An unparalleled outbreak of state prisoners occurred at San Quentin, on the 22d of July, whereby one hundred and fifty convicts escaped. They captured Lieutenant Governor Chellis in their stampede, and bore him along for a considerable distance, to protect themselves from being fired upon by the guard, but he was finally set down unharmed. The major portion of the prisoners were recovered next day, and, after pursuit, roll-call showed that thirty-three were missing, twenty-two wounded, and three killed. Many of the missing were afterward captured.

The floods were very disastrous on the Merced River and its tributaries. In the neighborhood of Fremont's mills it rose ten feet higher than was ever before known. About the heads of the Chowchilla tremendous land-slides occurred. One is said to have been of the area of forty acres, to the depth, in places, of one hundred feet, bearing with it masses of trees six and eight feet in diameter.

A fire at Hornitos, on the 20th of August, destroyed about $30,000 worth of property.

Veins of silver, believed to be both rich and extensive, were discovered six miles south of Mariposa, in September, and created a local excitement.

L. A. Holmes, the witty and humorous editor of the Mariposa Gazette and Visalia Delta, died in September, 1862. His decease was a loss to the county and the state.

19. MONO COUNTY.

An extraordinary flood occurred in Mono County, on the 11th of January, occasioned by a rain of three days duration falling on a heavy body of snow. Great damage was sustained at Aurora, which lies at the convergence of several gulches. The streets were converted into rivers, whose frenzied currents left destruction in their wake. The stone buildings were undermined and fell with crash after crash, and the adobe buildings were dissolved into heaps of mud. The disaster was attended with loss of life on Boda Creek.

The Esmeralda Star newspaper was established May 10, 1862.

The mineral wealth of Esmeralda has been rapidly developed during the year. Several ledges, which had held but a nominal price in market, rose to a high figure after quartz mills were fairly in operation. In the month of August, the Wide West ledge appreciated from $200 to $1,000.

22. NEVADA COUNTY.

A gale visited this county on the 15th and 16th of November, 1861. During its prevalence trees were uprooted, houses blown down, and valuable flumes destroyed.

The great flood of 1861–'2 wrought considerable damage to the quartz mining interests of Grass Valley. The mines were filled with water, and the mills ceased to run, throwing out of employment 1,500 miners. It was estimated that, while the storm continued, the daily loss accruing to Grass Valley amounted to $10,000. Notwithstanding the great losses occasioned by the storm, the property valuation of the county, for the year ending June 30th, 1862, was half a million more than for the previous year—an evidence of the solid prosperity of the county.

A new wire suspension bridge has been constructed across Deer Creek, at Nevada City, at a cost of $12,000. It is said to be the largest one in the state. The cables are 503 feet long, and the surface of the suspended roadway is 4,700 square feet.

25. SACRAMENTO COUNTY.

The great floods of 1861–'62 were peculiarly disastrous to the capital of the State. The swollen current of the American River burst through the levees of Sacramento City, and submerged the whole town to a depth of from two to eighteen feet. The water not only entered the lower stories of all the dwellings, but in many cases invaded the second, and in the southern part of the city small houses were lifted from their foundations, and overturned or floated off by the tide. The business streets were transformed into Venetian canals, and row-boats and sailing craft were substituted for land vehicles. At one time the steamer Gem, attempting to ascend the American River, was drawn through the crevasse, and lodged in an orchard one hundred rods from the river. It is impossible to estimate with precision the damage which the city sustained through the flood. It probably did not fall short of $2,000,000. But the city has the recuperative power to recover from the blow. She has already built a substantial bulkhead, impervious to future floods, and she will continue to be the leading commercial city of the interior.

Two educational conventions, three political conventions, and the State Agricultural Fair were held at Sacramento in the year 1862.

29. SAN JOAQUIN COUNTY.

The Waterloo House, ten miles north of Stockton, has been made doubly famous in connection with warlike exploits. In November, 1861, John Balkwill resisted an attempt to eject him from the premises. He barricaded his house, and threw up earthworks around it, and bade defiance to an enemy armed with a nine-pounder and small arms. After several rounds of shot on both sides, the officers of the law interposed in behalf of the besieged, and hostilities were suspended.

In May, 1862, an attempt was made by the squatters and settlers on Comstock's Ranch, near the Waterloo House, to resist a writ of ejectment, served by the sheriff. From fifty to eighty armed men intrenched themselves, and prepared to resist any force, civil or military, that might be brought against them. For a time bloodshed was imminent, as the people were in favor of executing the law at all hazards; but better counsels prevailed on the part of the settlers, and the claims were legally adjusted.

Miss Abigail B. Monroe was accidentally drowned in the San Joaquin River, on the 25th of June. She formed one of a party on a pleasure excursion in a sail-boat.

The third annual fair of the San Joaquin Valley Agricultural Society was held at Stockton, commencing Sept. 9, 1862.

36. SIERRA COUNTY.

An avalanche occurred at Orum Hill, near Pine Grove, February 13, 1862, occasioning the loss of two lives: over three acres of snow slid down the mountain side, burying a miner's cabin, and smashing in the timbers at the entrance to a tunnel. Land slides were frequent in the deep and narrow cañons of the Sierras during the extraordinary storms of 1861–'2.

The mines of Alturas or Northern Sierra have been worked with great success. Large chispas have been taken, and new mining localities have been established, and general prosperity characterizes the mining season of 1862.

Howland Flat, one of the largest and most prosperous mining towns of Northern Sierra, was nearly destroyed by fire, September 28, 1862. Thirty houses were burned, involving a loss of about $50,000.

39. SONOMA COUNTY.

A tragic affair occurred on the 24th of January, 1862, resulting in the death of Deputy Sheriff David Campbell and one Isaac Baker, whom he was attempting to arrest. Campbell shot Baker and mortally wounded him. At the same moment a son of Baker shot Campbell, killing him instantly.

The unsettled condition of land titles in Sonoma County continues to cause trouble, litigation, and resistance to law. The settlers on the Rancho Sotoyome, in the Russian River Valley, made an armed resistance to the execution of writs of restitution, in June. On the 17th of July, Sheriff Bowles went to the Ranch with a posse of 225 men to serve a writ against Cornelius Bice, one of the occupants, and was met by a body of sixty armed men. His own men being unarmed, he was unable to execute his commission. In September, the Governor having ordered out the militia, two companies proceeded from Petaluma to the Ranch, and on the 25th ejected the occupants; but no sooner had the militia left than the settlers returned to the Ranch. At the following session of the District Court, proceedings were instituted against the settlers, effectually dispossessing them of the land.

The Sonoma County Agricultural and Mechanical Fair was held in conjunction with Napa County, at Sonoma, commencing October 7th, 1862.

40. STANISLAUS COUNTY.

The flood in this county was attended with loss of life and great destruction of property along the course of the Stanislaus River. About one-half of the town of Knight's Ferry, an enterprising place in the foot-hills, was literally swept away by the impetuous current of the swollen stream. The river rose twelve feet higher at this place than the highest previous water-mark, and the current was sufficiently strong to propel mill-stones, iron safes, and huge boulders. The bridge, flour mills, and business houses, with their contents, on the lower side of Main street, were carried away. But with the characteristic spirit of California towns, the energetic inhabitants immediately began to repair their losses, scarcely waiting for the floods to abate, and now the place presents a better appearance than before.

42. TEHAMA COUNTY.

The last Legislature granted a franchise for an important wagon road connecting Red Bluff, via Noble's Pass and Honey Lake, with the Humboldt mines of Nevada Territory. The road has been improved and much travelled during the past season.

L. H. Sanborn, Esq., a prominent member of the county bar at Red Bluff, died June 23, 1862.

There are two Indian reservations in this county—the Nome Cult, well conducted and successful, and the Nome Lackee, averred to be in a "miserable condition." From the latter, bands of Indians have several times escaped and made incursions upon the neighboring ranches. The first important raid of this character was made by thirty partially-armed Indians on the 30th of April. The whites organized at once, pursued, and surprised them May 4th, when a fight occurred in which seventeen Indians and two whites were killed.

43. TRINITY COUNTY.

The Weaverville Journal of December 14, 1861, referring to the flood in Trinity River, which was then at its height, says it was "the greatest ever known, even by the Indians, for half a century. The river, in places where it was confined, rose seventy feet above water mark; in other places where it was wide, the banks caved, and cultivated ranches were carried away. Every mining improvement on the river for one hundred miles has been destroyed, and more than one-half the bar and river miners are ruined." The loss was estimated at $150,000.

But, as has been shown in Klamath County, the flood compensated for private losses by benefiting the public at large. The Journal, above quoted, says, at a later date: "The immense body of water rushing down the stream has washed heavy deposits of earth off many flats and bars, leaving nothing for the miner to do but to wash the pay dirt. In some instances, the entire bed of the stream has been changed and the old channel is nearly dry, saving to the miner much expense in damming and fluming."

A heavy rain storm occurred on the 12th of June at Weaverville.

47. YUBA COUNTY.

The flood of 1861–'2 left traces in this county. A small portion of the city of Marysville was inundated by the first rise of December, 1861, and several buildings undermined. Portions of cultivated land along the courses of the streams were washed away. Hundreds of acres of the flats of Bear River were covered with sand and tailings brought down by the mountain torrents, and rendered unfit for agricultural purposes. The wool-growers of the county were said to be heavy losers.

Upon the accession of Horace Beach to the office of County Collector, it was discovered that his predecessor, John S. Love, was a defaulter to the extent of from $20,000 to $30,000.

OREGON.

A great flood deluged the Willamette Valley in December, 1861. A heavy fall of rain, combined with the melting snows of the cascades, swelled the mountain brooks to destructive torrents, and raised the Willamette River above its banks, inundating extensive tracts of cultivated land in the valley, and undermining the towns and villages along its course. The flood attained its greatest height on the 5th of December, at which time it is said to have been much greater in extent than any that has preceded it since the State was occupied by white men. At Oregon City, which suffered more than any other point, the loss was estimated at $170,000.

The Umpqua River also overflowed its banks, and flooded the adjacent country; but the valley being less thickly settled, the destruction of property was limited.

The unusual fall of snow east of the Cascades, during the winter of 1861–'62, gave rise to a June flood in the lower Columbia, of unprecedented height. The Dalles was inundated, and the Willamette was backed up so that the river stood at Portland, on the 14th of June, twenty-eight feet above low-water mark, completely deluging the lower part of the city.

Important discoveries of gold, in placers and quartz, have been made in eastern Oregon and Washington. The "rush" of 30,000 adventurers to the new mining field has created a home market for the productions of this State. Much of the overland emigration was diverted to Oregon, and will permanantly occupy the rich farming land of Willamette Valley. Thus a great impetus has been given to the development of the mineral and agricultural wealth of the State; and notwithstanding the overwhelming losses by flood, it has, during the past year, been blessed with unwonted prosperity.

The increase of population in the northeastern part has made new municipal organizations necessary, and two new counties, Baker and Umatilla, have been erected—the former embracing the valleys of Grande Ronde, Powder and Burnt rivers, western affluents of Snake river; and the latter including the mining region of John Day and Umatilla rivers, tributaries of the Columbia.

14. MULTNOMAH COUNTY.

Portland promises to become the second commercial city on the coast. It is the shipping point for the state of Oregon and the vast mining region which is being developed in the basin of the Upper Columbia. During the past year it has made steady and rapid advances in population, wealth, and solid business prosperity. Situated at the convergence of the Willamette, Columbia, and ocean routes of travel, nature designed that Portland should become a great city, and every indication points to the fulfilment of her noble destiny.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

The Nez Perce and Salmon River mines may be said to have accomplished the important results expected of them. They have drawn from all parts of the coast and from the east a large emigration, nearly trebling the population of the territory. They have yielded large and satisfactory returns in gold; over $3,000,000 (it is estimated) having been shipped from the mines of Washington and Oregon, through public and private channels. Enterprising adventurers have been stimulated to prospect more thoroughly portions of the great basin of the Upper Columbia, and new fields of mineral wealth have rewarded their efforts, and the gold producing area of the Pacific States has been enlarged.

Two new counties, Idaho and Nez Perce, were created from Shoshone County by the Legislative Assembly, Dec. 20, 1861.

The coldest weather ever experienced on Puget Sound of which there is any record, occurred in January, 1862. During that and the preceding month a large amount of rain and snow fell, corresponding to the extraordinary rain fall of Oregon and California. At Vancouver, on the 17th of January at sunrise, the mercury stood 10° below zero.

For several years past, Lieutenant John Mullan, U. S. A., has been engaged in constructing a wagon road from Fort Benton, at the head of present navigation on the Missouri River, to Walla Walla, near the bend of the Columbia. He completed this important work in August, 1862, and the navigable waters of those two streams flowing to opposite oceans, were united by a good mountain road, 624 miles in length.

IX. PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

1. Territorial University.

An Act incorporating the "University of the Territory of Washington" was approved January 24, 1862. The following gentlemen were appointed a Board of Regents.

The term of office of the Regents is three years, and three Regents are elected by the Legislature each year.

The General Government has donated to the Territory for the endowment of the University, 46,080 acres of unoccupied land, which, it is believed, will create a fund of not less than $75,000. The University buildings are located at Seattle, King County, and are nearly completed. Nearly one-half of the amount donated has been expended.

2. Common Schools.

The office of Territorial Superintendent of Common Schools was abolished by Act of the Legislative Assembly, approved January 15, 1862.

The General Government has set apart one-eighteenth of the public land for Common School purposes. The amount thus donated to this Territory is 10,161,138 acres. If sold at the low rate of fifty cents per acre, the sum realized will be over five millions of dollars, the annual income from which will support 720 competent teachers.

Number of children in the Territory between the ages of four and twenty-one years, 2,141. Number of school houses, 53. Cost of instruction, $9,638 22 for the fiscal year of 1861.—Report of B. C. Lippincott, Superintendent of Common Schools, 1861.

5. IDAHO COUNTY.

Idaho County, organized December 20, 1861, comprises all that portion of what was Shoshone County lying south of the dividing ridge between the Clearwater and Salmon Rivers. The name, according to one authority, is the Indian word for "star," but the signification popularly attributed to it is, "Gem of the Mountains." Within its limits lie the rich gold fields of Salmon River, already possessing a world-wide fame. New and important discoveries have recently been made on Boise River. It is probable that the greater portion of the county abounds in auriferous wealth.

The scenery in the neighborhood of Salmon River is remarkable and impressive. The stream flows between perpendicular walls of rock, from five hundred to two thousand feet high.

Florence City is situated on an elevated plateau in the heart of a wild mountainous region, its altitude being so great that snow exists in the vicinity the major portion of the year. It is a striking example of the rapid growth of our mining towns. In the height of the mining season, and before the first year of its settlement was complete, its population exceeded 5,000.

12. MISSOULA COUNTY.

A considerable emigration entered Washington Territory via Lieut. Mullan's wagon road, having ascended the Missouri River as far as Fort Benton on boats. The fine agricultural lands along the course of Mullan's road, and in the valleys of Bitter Root, Blackfoot, and Hell Gate rivers, are being occupied for farming and grazing purposes. Gold has been found in the neighborhood of each of the above named streams. The newly developed mineral wealth of this extensive district, together with its agricultural advantages and improved means of communication, are likely to work important results in its immediate future.

Nez Perce County, organized December 20, 1861, comprises a belt of land lying south of the Clearwater River, and extending from Snake River eastward to the Bitter Root Mountains. Elk City, the centre of a gold mining district; Lewiston, the head of navigation on the Snake River, and Kamas Prairie, a fertile agricultural expanse, lie within its limits. The name of the county is derived from a large, powerful, and friendly Indian tribe, within whose reservation nearly the whole county lies. Nearly all the travel to the Salmon River mines passes through Nez Perce County.

NEVADA TERRITORY.

Congress at its last session transferred the eastern boundary of Nevada from the thirty-ninth to the thirty-eighth degree of longitude, thereby adding nearly one-fourth to the extent of the territory.

The past year has been fruitful in results. It opened with a flood, which destroyed property estimated at from $200,000 to $1,000,000. This was followed by a stampede to the Salmon River mines which still further drained the territory of the means of developing its resources. But these resources were too well known, too vast and too multiform to remain undeveloped. The damaged mills were repaired and put into operation, and new ones were erected to meet the increased demand; the busy hum of industry sounded on every hand, and unexampled prosperity followed. Ophir stock rose from $1,800 to $3,600 per foot. Other mines appreciated in a corresponding degree. Capitalists, and professional and business men who came over from California to speculate, remained to engage in business, build houses and homes, and permanently invest their capital. Virginia, Gold Hill, Silver, and Carson Cities have grown with magical rapidity, and the first named, numbering several thousand inhabitants, already wears a metropolitan aspect.

It is computed that 1,000 wagon teams are engaged in carrying freight from Sacramento Valley to Washoe. The teams make about four trips during the season, hauling on an average two and a half tons at a load, at six to seven cents per pound. Thus we have an aggregate of 10,000 tons of freight transported over the mountains in one season, at a probable cost of $1,300,000. These figures hint strongly at the need of a railroad.

GENERAL REMARKS.

Election.—The general election is held annually on the first Wednesday of September.

County Officers.—The District Attorneys and Probate Judges are appointed by the Governor for two years. The other County officers are elected by the people for two years. The County Clerk is Clerk of the Probate Court, and Clerk of the Board of County Commissioners, and also, ex officio, County Auditor.

1. CHURCHILL COUNTY.

Churchill County extends nearly across the central portion of the Territory. The Overland Mail Route and Telegraph traverses its entire length. The most important mineral regions known to exist in the county are the Silver Hill district, south of the Humboldt Mountains, and the newly discovered silver ledges in the Reese River and Simpson's Park districts, 180 miles east of Carson City, near the mail route. Churchill County is attached to Lyon for county, judicial, and revenue purposes.

Fort Churchill.—Major McDermott, commanding; 33 miles northeast of Carson City.

General Merchandise.—Henry Bethel.

2. DOUGLAS COUNTY.

This county is triangular in shape, and situated in the angle of the western boundary of the Territory. It embraces the greater portion of Carson Valley, an important agricultural district. The Sierras, in the western part, are clothed to the summit with useful timber, and the numerous streams that roll down their sides, furnish abundant water power. The mineral resources of this county are but slightly developed.

3. ESMERALDA COUNTY.

Esmeralda is a large county, occupying the southern part of the Territory, and includes within its limits Walker's Lake—a large body of water without an outlet, and the unexplored region east of it. The Esmeralda District, from which the county takes its name, is in the western part—the richest ledges and the town of Aurora lying beyond the border, in California. The Van Horn and several other silver districts of less importance than the Esmeralda, lie wholly or partly in this county. The gold placer diggings on Walker River, have been worked with success. A coal mining district has been laid out on the East Walker.

Members of Legislative Assembly.

Member of Council.—Hon. John W. Pugh, Aurora, 1863.

Representatives.—Hons. A. D. Allen, J. W. Calder, Arthur McKeel, and John S. Ross.

4. HUMBOLDT COUNTY.

Humboldt County occupies the northeastern portion of Nevada Territory, embracing nearly one-third of its extent. Humboldt River, which traverses the county from east to west, after forming a lake, finally sinks. In the bend of the river, and near the centre of the Territory, exists the rich Humboldt silver mining district, the ledges cropping out of a range of mountains which, with its spurs, does not exceed thirty miles in length, from north to south, by twelve or fifteen miles in breadth. Gold, quicksilver, lead, and antimony, are also found in the Humboldt mining region.

The disparaging accounts of Humboldt River—its impure waters, alkaline flats, and the parched and barren deserts along its course, seem to be inapplicable to this and the other mountainous masses adjacent to the stream, for these are favored with abundance of pure water, vegetation of thrifty growth, and a comparatively genial climate.

5. LAKE COUNTY.

Lake County forms a parallelogram in the northwestern part of the Territory—the long side adjoining California. Of the northern part but little is known. Pyramid Lake, the largest body of water in the Territory, occupies the southern part. West of the lake are situated the fine grazing districts of Long and Honey Lake Valleys, lying mainly, however, in California.

6. LYON COUNTY.

The well known Devil's Gate mining district, with its valuable silver lodes and numerous quartz mills, is within the limits of this county, which is very irregular in shape, and may be described as extending a short arm westward, and a long arm southeastward, from the great bend of Carson River. The water power in the vicinity of Dayton is well improved, and there are many mills clustered in the vicinity of Silver City.

7. ORMSBY COUNTY.

Ormsby County extends from Lake Bigler over the east summit of the Sierras, across Carson River to the western boundary of Lyon County. The fine agricultural district of Eagle Valley lies in this County. The Sierras abound in valuable timber, with eligible mill sites. Carson River furnishes unlimited water power, and numerous quartz mills are in operation on its banks. The mineral resources are various, and believed to be extensive—silver and gold quartz lodes having been discovered in various parts of the county. The ledges on Clear Creek, a short distance below Carson City, are being developed with great vigor. Tunnels driven between two and three thousand feet, into the hills, at this point, are among the gigantic enterprises of the Territory.

8. STOREY COUNTY.

The Virginia district, containing the Comstock Lode—the richest silver mine known to exist, and the Gold Hill district, second only to the Virginia district in importance, lie mainly within the limits of Storey County, rendering it the first county in the territory in mineral wealth and productiveness. Immense capital and energy have been expended in the erection of reduction works and quartz mills, and tunnels several thousand feet in length have been driven into the mountains, for the purpose of tapping the mines hundreds of feet below the surface.

The October contribution to the Sanitary Fund by Storey County was made in the shape of eight massive silver bars, worth $20,226.22. Five of the bars weighed 111 pounds each.

Virginia City appears to be the supply depot for the territory. The principal wholesale houses are located here, and it is growing and spreading rapidly on every side. Public buildings, of a substantial character, are going up which will compare favorably with those of older and larger cities.

9. WASHOE COUNTY.

Washoe Lake, a small sheet of water in the southeastern part of Washoe County, not only contributed its name to the county in which it lies, but to the whole silver region bordering on Carson River. The county of Washoe lies between Storey County on the east and the boundary of California, and extends from Pyramid Lake on the north to Lake Bigler on the south. Washoe Valley and the chain of valleys extending northward along the course of Steamboat Creek and Truckee River, contain more or less agricultural and grazing land. An abundance of timber exists in the mountains, and saw-mills are in active operation along their base. Gold, silver, lead, and other minerals are profitably mined in this county. The Ophir Works, the most extensive reduction works in the territory, are located on the western side of Washoe Valley, and are to be connected with the Ophir mine at Virginia City, by a railroad.

UTAH TERRITORY.

With the exception of Colorado, no State or Territory in the Union is so regular in its outlines as Utah. Its boundaries are entirely political or artificial, and were it not for the notch in the northeastern part, caused by the corner of Nebraska, its form would be almost a square. The 109th degree of longitude divides it from Colorado on the east, and the 115th from Nevada on the west. The 37th parallel of latitude separates it from New Mexico on the south, and the 42d from Washington on the north.

A high and rugged spur of the Rocky Mountains, generally designated the Wasatch Range, though in places known as the Bear and Uinta Mountains, traverses the territory from north to south. At the base of these mountains, on the west, lies Great Salt Lake and the chain of valleys stretching southward for 200 miles. In these valleys, and on the eastern border of Great Salt Lake, peaches, apples, pears, plums, apricots, grapes, currants, and other fruits are successfully cultivated, and also the various grains and vegetables grown in the temperate zone. The largest streams are Green and Grand Rivers, which unite and form the Colorado. The general character of the territory is that of mountain and desert. The streams sink as they emerge from the mountains, and many of them are entirely absorbed by the thirsty soil, before they have advanced six miles into the valleys. The lakes are generally saline, Great Salt Lake being the largest of that character in America. Extensive tracts of land, apparently of excellent quality, are ruined by the abundant presence of alkali, which corrodes vegetation.

The population, about 80,000, is composed almost exclusively of a religious sect who style themselves Latter Day Saints, and are popularly known as Mormons. An imposing temple is in process of erection at Great Salt Lake City, where the wealth, power, and influence of the church are centralized, and where its head, President Brigham Young, resides.

VIII. THE MORMON CHURCH;

Or, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

[For the following interesting and lucid statement of the organization of the Church, we are indebted to President Brigham Young and Hon. Elias Smith, the historian of the territory.]

First Presidency.—The first quorum of authority in the Church is the First Presidency, and is composed of three members, viz.: Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, Daniel H. Wells.

Twelve Apostles.—The next quorum in authority is the Twelve Apostles, viz.: Orson Hyde, Orson Pratt, John Taylor, Wilford Woodruff, George A. Smith, Amasa M. Lyman, Ezra T. Benson, Charles C. Rich, Lorenzo Snow, Erastus Snow, Franklin D. Richards, George Q. Cannon.

Seventies.—The next quorum in authority is the Seventies. The seventy members that constitute the first quorum of seventies, are all presidents of the first ten quorums of seventies, making seven presidents to each quorum; the members of all the other quorums of seventies number sixty-three, each quorum having seven presidents. There are sixty-two quorums of seventies organized in Utah Territory.

High Priests.—There is a quorum of High Priests, the numerical extent of which is not defined. This quorum has a president and two counsellors.

There are also quorums of Elders, Priests, Teachers and Deacons.

The Seventies and High Priests in the various settlements in this Territory have meetings, and are regulated by a local presidency, separate from, but subordinate to, the standing presidencies of their quorums.

John Smith (son of Hyram Smith) is presiding patriarch. There are several other patriarchs in the church.

High Council.—There is a High Council, composed of twelve members, organized at Great Salt Lake City, and in all the principal settlements of the Territory.

Bishops.—The Territory is divided into wards, over each ward is a Bishop, with two counsellors. Great Salt Lake City is divided into twenty wards. Edward Hunter is the presiding Bishop.

Membership.—In the Territory, the numerical membership of the church will nearly correspond with the population. Throughout the United States there are branches and members of the church, but at present so disorganized that the number is not known.

There are organized branches and conferences of the church throughout England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Denmark, Norway, Italy, Switzerland, the Germanic States, and in other parts of the world.

1. BEAVER COUNTY.

All the settlements upon the Beaver and its tributaries, including about 10,000 acres of productive land, are within the limits of Beaver County, which with a width of thirty-two miles, extends entirely across the southern part of the Territory. Considerable bodies of pine timber exist near the heads of the streams in the mountains. A lead mine is worked near Minersville on the lower Beaver. Iron ore is also found.

6. GREEN RIVER COUNTY.

Green River, the largest stream in Utah, gives its name to this county, which occupies the northeastern part of the Territory. It is an arid, cold, barren district, from 6,000 to 7,000 feet above the level of the sea, and almost uninhabited, presenting very few inducements for settlement.

Fort Bridger.—Postmaster, William A. Carter; 126 miles east of Great Salt Lake City.

7. IRON COUNTY.

Iron County, like Beaver, but a few miles in width, extends entirely across the southern part of the Territory. The western portion is an unmitigated desert, broken by a few dry ranges of mountains. The eastern part is very rugged and mountainous, with a few small elevated valleys. There is some white pine timber, of superior quality, near the summits of the mountains. Magnetic and other iron ores are abundant, and some coal veins have been opened and brought into use. Ancient hieroglyphics are numerous upon the rocks near the south end of Little Salt Lake, in this county. Parowan, the oldest settlement in Southern Utah, is 5,700 feet above the level of the sea.

Salt springs of excellent quality, and rock salt, are found in the mountains. The region is too elevated and the climate tob cold for any but the hardier fruits and vegetables.

This valley lies at the western base of the southern extension of the Wasatch Mountains, and is well watered by the San Pete River and its several affluents, which, uniting, form the Sevier River. Saleratus is gathered in considerable quantities from natural beds. Thin veins of coal have been traced in the mountains. Pine timber, cedar for fuel, and rock for building purposes exist in abundance. None but the more hardy fruits and grains mature.

The lake is connected with Great Salt Lake by the Jordan River, and is said to correspond to the Sea of Galilee, in Palestine, connected by the river Jordan with the Dead Sea. Utah Valley, east of the lake, is watered by several streams rising in the Wasatch Mountains, which in this county are remarkable for their rugged character. Cedar Valley, in the west part of the county, is of considerable altitude, and a good grazing district. Fort Crittenden is located in the northern part.

15. WASATCH COUNTY.

The scenery of Wasatch County is not surpassed by that of any other portion of Utah Territory. It lies east of Great Salt Lake and Utah Counties, and is reached by means of a road costing $30,000, built along the Provo River, which runs through a magnificent gorge, a distance of 15 miles. Cascade Creek, coming from the south, falls over a precipice, into the cañon, from a height of 1,000 feet. At its upper end the cañon widens into a fine mountain-locked valley, 30 miles long by 10 miles wide, watered with several beautiful creeks and many springs. At Hot Spring Town, several thermal springs have formed immense caldrons of limestone, some of them 40 or 50 feet deep, with hot water in the bottom, of various colors and temperatures.

16. WASHINGTON COUNTY.

The high, mountainous ridge—apparently an extension of the Wasatch range—forming the south rim of the Great Basin, traverses this, the most southern county in the Territory, in an east and west direction. In the eastern part, the Colorado runs through an impassable mountain gorge. Several fine valleys, on the head waters of the Rio Virgin, at the southern base of the mountains, enjoy a semi-torrid temperature, in which the attempt to grow cotton has been made, with uncertain results.

BRITISH COLONIES

Of British Columbia and Vancouver Island.

These Colonies comprise the British Possessions west of the Rocky Mountains.

I. BRITISH COLUMBIA.

British Columbia lies north of the 49th parallel and west of the Rocky Mountains. It is about 300 miles wide, from east to west, and is traversed from north to south by broken chains of high and rugged mountains. Between the ranges lie broad expanses of table lands, diversified with lakes, prairies, and timber belts. The streams are rapid and generally gold-bearing. The principal ones are the Frazer, flowing southward into the Gulf of Georgia, the Stikeen, flowing westward into the Pacific, and Peace River, flowing northeastward into Great Slave Lake.

Cariboo, the famous mining district, is about 50 miles long, from east to west, by 20 broad, and includes the placers on many of the streams which flow into Frazer River, between its source in the Rocky Mountains and the point where it bends southward. The district is about 500 miles from the mouth of the Frazer, by the travelled route. Valuable auriferous deposits are also found in the head waters and principal affluents of each of the other streams above mentioned.

2. VANCOUVER ISLAND.

Vancouver Island is divided from Washington Territory by the Strait of San Juan de Fuca, and from British Columbia by the Gulf of Georgia. "Of an elongated form, it is essentially a mountain ridge, attaining at Mount Arrowsmith, an elevation of 5,900 feet. Cut up by numerous inlets of the sea, in no case does the water-shed suffice to give a navigable stream, though numerous fresh water lakes are found, imbosomed amongst the spurs of the mountain ranges. In length three hundred miles, with an average breadth of thirty to fifty, its outline is boldly picturesque; its shores are characterized by abrupt cliffs, rocky promontories, magnificent harbors, sheltered coves, and pebbly beaches. * * The climate approximates closely to that of Great Britain, modified by special circumstances connected with its physical geography."—Prize Essay by Charles Forbes, Esq.

The principal resources are coal, timber, and fisheries. The product of the coal mines of Narraimo in 1861, was about 15,000 tons.

The free port of Victoria, situated on a commodious harbor, at the southeastern extremity of the Island, is the capital of the colony, and the principal commercial town in the British Possessions on the North Pacific coast.

Zodiacal Light.—The Zodiacal Light is a faint light resembling the tail of a comet, and is seen at certain seasons of the year, following the course of the Sun, after evening twilight, or preceding his approach in the morning sky.

It was formerly held to be the atmosphere of the Sun. It has also been supposed to be a nebulous body revolving around the Sun. From recent observations, made with care in various parts of tropical America, there appears to be strong evidence that the Zodiacal Light is a belt which entirely surrounds the Earth.

Velocity of the Earth's Motion.—The Earth moves forward in its orbit 1,640,000 miles per day, 68,000 miles per hour, 1,100 miles per minute, and nearly 19 miles every second.
